

Adult Literacy Providers

Adult literacy programs are governed by different visions and scopes of services. You may wish to be specific when talking with them about their services to see if they fit your needs.

Ways of finding your adult literacy program in your county.

Looking on the World Wide Web:

1. www.proliteracy.org this site lists about 1200 volunteer literacy programs who are members of this national adult literacy organization.
2. www.ideanet.doe.state.in.us this site with the Indiana Department Education under the Division of Adult Education lists the programs that receive funding from DOE.
3. www.literacydirectory.org this site is managed by the National Institute of Literacy.

Looking in the local community:

1. Check with your local library.
2. Look in your local telephone book for a listing. It is sometimes listing in the yellow pages or the community service pages under education, schools, or adult programs.
3. Check with your local GED program.
